The story of Super W

Not so long ago, there was a math teacher that worked hard so her students could be the best at math. The students loved math so much that they often sat and stared at the sky, wishing for more math problems to complete. One night, a student was enjoying solving equations out in the night air. When the student looked up, they were amazed at what they saw.

In the sky, was a perfect W shape, outlined by stars. Because the student was so enthralled by their math work, and so happy with their teacher for assigning it, they decided to name the constellation after that teacher. This is how the Super W constellation was discovered and named.
